WEDNESDAY, September 20, 1749.

ROME, May 24. N. S.

THE emperor, on the remonſtrances made by the Pope, of the vaſt prejudices which the treaty of amity, lately ſtipulated by him as Great duke of Tuſcany, with the regencies of Barbary, occations to the Pope's trading ſubjects, and in general to thoſe of the neighbouring princes, has cauſed a copy of thoſe treaties to be tranſmitted to the court of Rome, demonſtrating, that they are exactly conformable to thoſe which the king of the Two Sicilies had ſtipulated with them; in which is expreſly mentioned, that thoſe pyrates ſhall not take ſhelter in the ports of Tuſcany, but only in caſe of diſtreſs of weather. The republic of Venice has ſubjected to 20 days quarentine all veſſels that ſhall arrive in the Venetian dominions from any ports in the Mediterranean.

Hague, June 11. Ali Effendi, the Tripolitan ambaſſador, having been lately inſulted in his houſe by ſome Jews who had quarrel'd with his attendants, he preſented a memorial to the ſtates general, to require ſatisfaction for the violence then committed againſt him: But laſt Friday (being the day appointed for the public rejoicings on account of the peace) he wrote to the Greffier, That as it was a maxim in his country, upon ſuch ſolemn occaſions, to forgive all treſpaſſes, he deſired this affair might be entirely buried in oblivion. The ſtates of Zealand have lately reſolved to raiſe a million of florins by way of a lottery, to conſiſt of ten thouſand tickets, divided into fifty claſſes, which are to be paid off in ſo many years, in the following manner; the bearer of a ticket that ſhall have been drawn a prize of 40 florins in the 30th claſs, is to receive 40 florins per annum for 30 years, and at the end of that term he is to be reimburſed the hundred florins which are to be paid down on the ſubſcription.

Peterſburg, May 27. The admiralty has received freſh orders from court within theſe few days, to ſend to ſea without delay twelve ſhips of the line, four frigates, and two bomb-veſſels; and likewiſe to have all the reſt of the fleet ready to ſail on the firſt notice. One hundred gallies, and forty other veſſels, are ordered to be in readineſs for the embarkation of 36000 men, which are to be aſſembled for that purpoſe here, at Revel, and at Frederickſham; and tho' there are magazines already ſufficient for the ſubſiſtance of 40,000 men til the month of September, orders are given to form new ones equally conſiderable.

Stockholm June 2. It is generally believed, that our differences with the court of Peterſburg will be amicably adjuſted; yet our military and naval preparations are ſtill carried on with as much vivacity as ever. We have at preſent no leſs than 80 gallies perfectly equipped, beſides a bundle of ſmaller veſſels that are likewiſe fitted out in a warlike manner.

Madrid, May 25. We hear that ſeveral men of war and frigates are ſailed, in order to cruize in the Mediterranean againſt the corſairs of Barbary; and orders are ſent to the commiſſaries of the marine to fit out eighteen more ſhips of the line as ſoon as poſſible, which 'tis thought are deſtin'd for the ſame purpoſe. Mr. Keene's negotiation ſeems to be on a very good footing; but the convention which was talk'd of was a mere chimæra.

Paris, May 9. It is aſſured that a ſcheme is on foot for protecting our coaſts from all manner of inſults; and that according to this plan there are to be twenty-five ſhips of the line in each of our principal ſea ports, always ready to put to ſea; that a fix'd number of troops and ſailors are to be kept on foot, and that there ſhall always be proviſions and ſtores enough for three years; for which purpoſe the neceſſary magazines are to be formed. A great many families that retired to Rochelle from Cape Breton, are preparing to return thither by the next fleet, which will ſail very ſoon.

Several perſons have lately been committed to the Baſtile, for ſelling ſcandalous prints.

Hague, June 12. Tho' we have been told in ſome letters from London, that the convention negotiating by Mr. Keene, between the Britiſh and Spaniſh courts, is as good as concluded, yet all we can learn from Madrid is, That nothing more than one article relating to the South ſea company is agreed upon; the grand point of ſearching and viſiting in the American ſeas, remaining as the definitive treaty left it.

June 15. The 13th inſtant our grand piece of folly, vulgarly called fireworks, by way of rejoicing for a bad peace, was play'd off here: The whole was performed in an hour and four minutes, without the leaſt unlucky accident, which is the only thing worth noting or rejoicing for.

Extract of a Letter from Holland, June 13.

"We are in great apprehenſions here from the ſtrange ſpirits of the poplace, which runs counter to all the maxims upon which the republic is founded; full freedom in civil and religious matters being the ſource from whence the populouſneſs, trade, and wealth of theſe provinces have flow'd: The mob hath already diſquieted a congregation of chriſtian proteſtants; againſt whom the objection is, that they live in a ſingular manner, and that they are Puritans.

Hamburgh, May 23. We have received repeated and certain advice, that the eldeſt ſon of the Pretender paſſed ſome time ſince incognito thro' Leipſic to Berlin, on his way to Poland, in which kingdom there is no doubt he has been ſome time; we are farther told, and with circumſtances which incline our belief, that after quitting Avignon ſomewhat unexpectedly, he went directly to Paris, where he remained very privately for a few days, and then proceeded towards Luneville in Lorrain, in the neighbourhood of which he remain'd about a fortnight; he then went to Straſburg, where he likewiſe ſpent ſome days; but with all the privacy imaginable; which was the reaſon that hitherto we have had ſuch imperfect accounts of his motions.

Peterſburg, May 7. A courier paſſed through this place for Moſcow lately, with extraordinary diligence; it is reported that he is charged with his Swediſh majeſty's acceptation of the propoſition made by our court, for terminating the differences relating to the frontiers.

Smyrna, May 15. Great preparations are making here, and in the other ports belonging to the Grand Signior, to have the fleet, which his highneſs ordered to be fitted out, ready to put to ſea by the end of May.

Legborn, May 26. Ever ſince the gallies and other veſſels, that have been lately fitted out by the ſeveral powers in Italy, in order to give chace effectually to the Barbary rovers, our navigation is much more free than it was, as none of thoſe pyrates dare now make their public appearance on our ſeas. It is generally thought they will not venture out for the future far from home; and that they have no great inclination to wait for the arrival of the Britiſh ſquadron, who are daily expected in the Mediterranean, not only to give a check to the inſolence of thoſe audacious pyrates, but to demand ſatisfaction of the Algerines for the indignities which they lately offered to the Britiſh flag.

Genoa, May 27. The weather in this country, from the 21ſt to the 24th of this month, was extremely warm, and gave us great hopes of a plentiful harveſt. On the 24th the day was ſultry beyond expreſſion, hardly a breath of air ſtirring, and what there was, as hot as if it came out of a furnace. About 4 o'clock it began to lighten from all quarters of the ſky, and thunder'd dreadfully. In leſs than half an hour the floodgates of heaven were opened, and the water pour'd down upon us for 5 hours together in ſuch a manner, as gave us a very lively image of the general deluge. In the neighbouring village of Mouaiſin, the ſtables and other outhouſes were carried away with the cattle in them; and the peasants were in such danger of being destroyed in their houses, that they were forced to break holes in the wall, in order to give passage to the water. The mischiefs occasioned by this accident are very considerable.

Madrid, June 5. The articles that were left unsettled at Aix-la-Chapelle, between our court and that of Great-Britain, are now settled, to the reciprocal satisfaction of both parties; and the convention has since been ratified by the English, but the contents are not as yet publicly known.

Leghorn, June 9. A French ship is arrived here from Salonico, laden with Tobacco, the master of which reports, that in his passage he was boarded by two corsairs from Tripoli, one of 18, the other of twelve guns; who took out of his ship what provisions they thought proper, and then permitted him to proceed on his voyage.

Berlin, June 21. Great damages have been done throughout this electorate, by breaking of Clouds, and violent storms. According to letters from Stockholm, the differences with Russia are as good as adjusted; and that the treaty of Nysladt will be the basis of a new peace.

June 24. Private letters from Breslau in Silesia, dated the 20th instant, mention, that early that morning they had a most violent storm of lightning and thunder happened there; and the lightning set their magazines on fire, which communicated itself to the town, and half the city was soon consumed; and as it was upon the approach of St. John's fair, there was a great number of foreigners suffer'd as well as the inhabitants: And had not a violent rain ensued, the whole city would have shared the same fate.

Extract of a Letter from Venice, May 10, N. S.

According to private letters from Constantinople, there is a great ferment among the Janizaries; the consequences of which, the Porte sedulously endeavours to avert. As this restless spirit is very common in Turky, in time of peace, it is presumed, that the Porte will find herself under a necessity to seek employment abroad for this turbulent soldiery; but where, is the important question. We are inclined to believe it will be on the side of Persia, as the said letters already mention some difficulties between that kingdom, and the Ottoman empire, about their respective boundaries. As for our part, we don't seem to fear any attempt from the Turks upon the republic's possessions, the late reports on this head, being as ill-grounded as the rumours of an expedition against the island of Malta. However, much depends on the turn of affairs in the North. If peace can be preserved there, it may likewise be maintained in the South.

Paris A-la-main, May 19. The king has given the India company leave to raise troops, in order to send to the Indies, to defend their settlements, and accordingly they are enlisting both here and in the country, all the soldiers that have been disbanded, and all the young men that are fit for service, even those under five feet.

Cologne, May 18. The church of Lechnich, which was burnt to the ground about three years ago, having been rebuilt, and the arch of the roof almost clos'd, this unhappily fell in, kill'd the master builder and another, and dangerously wounded six or seven others.

Paris, May 19. There is now no longer doubt, that the disgrace of the count de Maurepas was owing to some concerns he had with a relation of his, invested upon his recommendation, with an employment of great consequence in the West-Indies, and the secrets of the schemes between them was discovered by M. de la Bourdenaye, who, by his connections with a great lady, found means to convey into a certain closet, intelligence that would have hardly reached that place any other way.

LONDON.

June 16. Several private letters from Amsterdam assure us, that all ranks and degrees of people are sincerely disposed to accept of such regulations, with respect to the manner of levying the public money, as shall be proposed by his serene highness the prince stadtholder, in as much as they are now convinced that several schemes that were formerly thought for the benefit and ease of the people, would be some of them oppressive, and others impracticable; whence it is manifest, that by patience and forbearance the prince has obtained what perhaps would never have been obtained by force.

Private letters from Amsterdam and the Hague insinuate, that a more regular form of government is on the point of being introduced than was ever seen in that country; the grand pensionary is for the future to confine himself to the proper duties of his office, without having any thing to do with the ministry; domestic concerns are to fall under the department of the count de Bentinck; count de Gronsfeldt is to have the direction of foreign affairs; secretary Back is to superintend the military; and Mr. Wenzel is to preside in what relates to the finances.

Sir John Norris, Knt. lay yesterday dangerously ill, being given over by his physicians.

By an act to prohibit the wear of foreign gold and silver brocades, any Taylor who shall make up a brocade waistcoat after the first of next July, forfeits 100l. By which act the mercers will clear their shops of all their brocade.

On Thursday last a number of brass cannon, 12 pounders, were shipped off from the Tower wharf, for Nova-Scotia, in order to secure that province.

The same day near 100 men, women and children, who came from divers parts of Germany, attended the lords of trade and plantations, to get an order to settle in Carolina, or some other of our American colonies.

We are assured, that a court martial will shortly sit at Chatham for the tryal of several Mariners accused of offences in the West Indies, at which time several officers are to appear before the said court, on complaints exhibited against them.

June 20. The Rainbow man of war is sailed for her station at Nova-Scotia; and the Dispatch sloop of war is sailed for the Mediterranean.

The elegant and magnificent monument, sacred to the memory of the late duke of Argyle, which has been some time erecting in Westminster abbey, is now finish'd. On the front of the pedestal, in basso relievo, appears Liberty seated in her temple, and two Genii offering the sword and shield of the deceased duke to the goddess. The pedestal is supported by two grand figures; on the right side that of Eloquence, with the works of Demosthenes, Cæsar's Commentaries, and the emblems of Justice lying by; on the left side that of Pallas, with the emblems of Wisdom and Valour. The cornice of the pedestal is ornamented with various trophies, alluding to his grace's different titles, honours and employments. Above is placed a sacrofagus of black and gold marble, on which rests the statue of the duke, supported by a figure representing History, whose left hand points to a book, in which is recorded, born October 10, MDCLXXX. Died October 4, MDCCXLIII; while the right hand is employed in writing upon an obelisk the following inscription:

Briton, behold! if patriot worth be dear,
A shrine that claims thy tributary tear;
Silent that tongue, admiring senates heard,
Nerveless that arm, opposing legions fear'd;
Nor less, O CAMPBELL! thine the pow'r to please,
And give to grandeur all the grace of ease.
Long from thy life let kindred heroes trace
Arts, which ennoble still the noblest race.
Others may owe their future fame to me,
I borrow immortality from thee.

JOHN DUKE of ARGYLE and GREENWICH.

Last Wednesday night a breeches maker near Chelsea, having some words with his wife, took up an oaken stick, and beat her with it; which so incensed two of his female neighbours, that they wrenched the stick out of his hand, and returned him the same compliment; and afterwards dragged him to the Thames, and duck'd him there, till he ask'd pardon upon his knees, and promised never to beat his wife again.

From the BARBADOS GAZETTE.

Remember the WAR, PEACE, and FIRE-WORKS.

BE it remember'd in the Annals of Posterity, and to the eternal Honour of the British Nation, That in the Year of our Lord 1739, and in the Twelfth Year of the auspicious Reign of GEORGE II, a War was enter'd into with Spain, for the Nonpayment of Ninety Thousand Pounds, due to the South Sea Company, and to secure a free Navigation without Search (or cutting Peoples Ears off) to the West-Indies. Which Declaration of War soon involv'd England in another with France; who contrary to Treaty, had open'd and fortified the Harbour of Dunkirk. Be it then, I say, remember'd, That Great-Britain, after a vast Profusion of Blood, and running in Debt full Thirty Millions, when it had reduced the Royal Fleets of France and Spain to so wretched a Condition, that they durst not appear at Sea, and had by the brave New-Englanders, taken the important Isle of Cape-Breton; did, by that very memorable Peace, concluded at Aix la Chapelle, 1749, not only generously restore Cape-Breton to the Crown of France, send two of her Prime Nobility thither as Hostages, leave Dunkirk in part still fortified; but also expended, in a Fireworks, a Sum little little inferior to the original Demand upon Spain, and concluded a most gracious and honourable Peace with that Nation; leaving the grand Affair of the Search, and the Barbarities us'd towards her gallant Sailors, just where she found them. Thus ended this long, bloody, and daring War; which was open'd with Bonfires at Home, carried on with Potguns in the Field, and ended with the loud Roar of Cannon in the Green Park, the 27th of April, 1749.
